Have the City of Pingyang, and Have Fortified It Against the Russians.

MILITARY EXPERTS ARE FOOLED

Mikado Has Made More Rapid Progress Towards Yula River Than the War Diplomats Thought Was Possible.

[Special by Scripps-Mellae.]
Yin Kow, March 3.—News has reached here of a desperate engagement between a force of 500 Chinese and the garrison of a Russian post in southern Manchuria. The Chinese are reported to have been commanded by Japanese officers and the attack was for the stroyed at a point outside of Min-Guma, a town midway between the two terminals. The Japanese agent who performed this feat also removed the telegraph wire along the line, thus effecting isolation of Vladivostok.

ONE OF RUSSIA'S FORMIDABLE FORTS AT PORT ARTHUR.

Since the Japanese were compelled to evacuate Port Arthur by several of the powers the Russians have worked diligently on its fortifications, and the forts are supposed to be very powerful. During the war with China the Japanese captured Port Arthur after a hard fight. The channel leading from the harbor is a tortuous one, and when the Russian fleet ventured outside recently, only to suffer severely from Japanese torpedo attack, the ships were three days in effecting the change of position.

purpose of destroying the railway. The Russian garrison fought bravely and, although outnumbered, finally managed to compel the bandits to retreat, but not until they had lost forty-two killed and many desperately wounded.

The attacking party was well armed with Mauser rifles, which they know how to use. The Russian commander claims that his men killed eighty bandits.

Editor Is Deported
Tien Tsin, March 3.—The British authorities have deported Editor Cowan of the North China Times, who was recently cautioned for printing accounts of Russian outrages on Chinese in Manchuria.

The British officials claimed that these stories, which were printed in Chinese, were having the effect of stirring up the Chinese against the Russians and trouble was feared. As Mr. Cowan declined to stop publishing the articles complained of his deportation followed.

Civil War Expected
Berlin, March 3.—The Taegliche Rundschau reports that Russia is on the verge of a revolution. Local outbreaks have occurred among students and urban workers and peasants. M. De Plehve, minister of the interior, the paper says, regards the peasant-strike as in a most dangerous condition. As in a most dangerous condition.

Starving rustics, continues the Rundschau, maddened by the excessive use of vodka, or Russian whisky, are plundering estates and burning outlying homesteads, murdering landowners in all directions.

Owing to this revolutionary danger the government has proclaimed a martial law in fifty-three of the seventy-one provinces in European Russia.

Good Services
New York, March 3.—Homeward bound on his tour around the world and inspection of the medical colleges and hospitals in the different countries, Dr. T. Aoyama of Tokio, one of the famous physicians of Japan, stopped here yesterday. Regarding Japan's ability to care for her wounded in battle he said:

"Japan has a splendid Red Cross service. The soldiers are taught how to take care of themselves, which is a great thing in war. At the front the Japanese surgeons work well and bravely."

The Japanese are hardened to their work and are fed so intelligently that in active service you find less sickness in the army of Japan than in the army of any other country. Their constitutions are strong and they recover quickly from dangerous wounds."

New Trouble
Berlin, March 3.—Russia is facing fresh complications because of a threatened uprising in the Caucasus, according to the ambassador of one of the leading powers in an interview here. The diplomat said that the Russian military authorities would have to take steps to re-enforce its garrisons there in order to be prepared for eventualities.

Railroad Line Cut
Tokio, March 3.—It is reported that one mile and a quarter of the Trans-Siberian railway connecting Vladivostok and Harbin has been de-says: Permits have been granted to fifty-three foreign correspondents to accompany the Japanese forces. Twenty-nine are English, seventeen American, five French and two German.

No Attack of Port Arthur
St. Petersburg, March 3.—The war office has given out what purports to be a summary of an official telegram from Viceroy Alexieff which states that Admiral Stark, commanding the Port Arthur squadron, reports that there was no attack by the Japanese on Feb. 28 or 29. On March 1 Admiral Stark reports he made a reconnaissance with his cruisers and destroyers within a radius of sixty miles, but failed to discover any trace of the enemy.

Japanese Hold Ping Yang
London, March 3.—The Japanese army has occupied Pingyang and has entrenched it against Russian attack.

This news, officially confirmed by Viceroy Alexieff's chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Pflug, indicates that the advance of the Japanese army, which began last Sunday, has been much more rapid than military experts here have believed could be the case.

The Japanese army apparently is making rapid progress toward the Yalu river.

Dispatches from Tokio state that Russia's main force has taken a position 100 miles west of the Yalu, with its base resting on Liaoyang, on the railroad running north from Port Arthur.

Russians Retreat
The Russian army, instead of holding the north bank of the Yalu, apparently has fallen back to a position 100 miles west, with its base at Liaoyang, on the railroad running north from Port Arthur to Harbin.

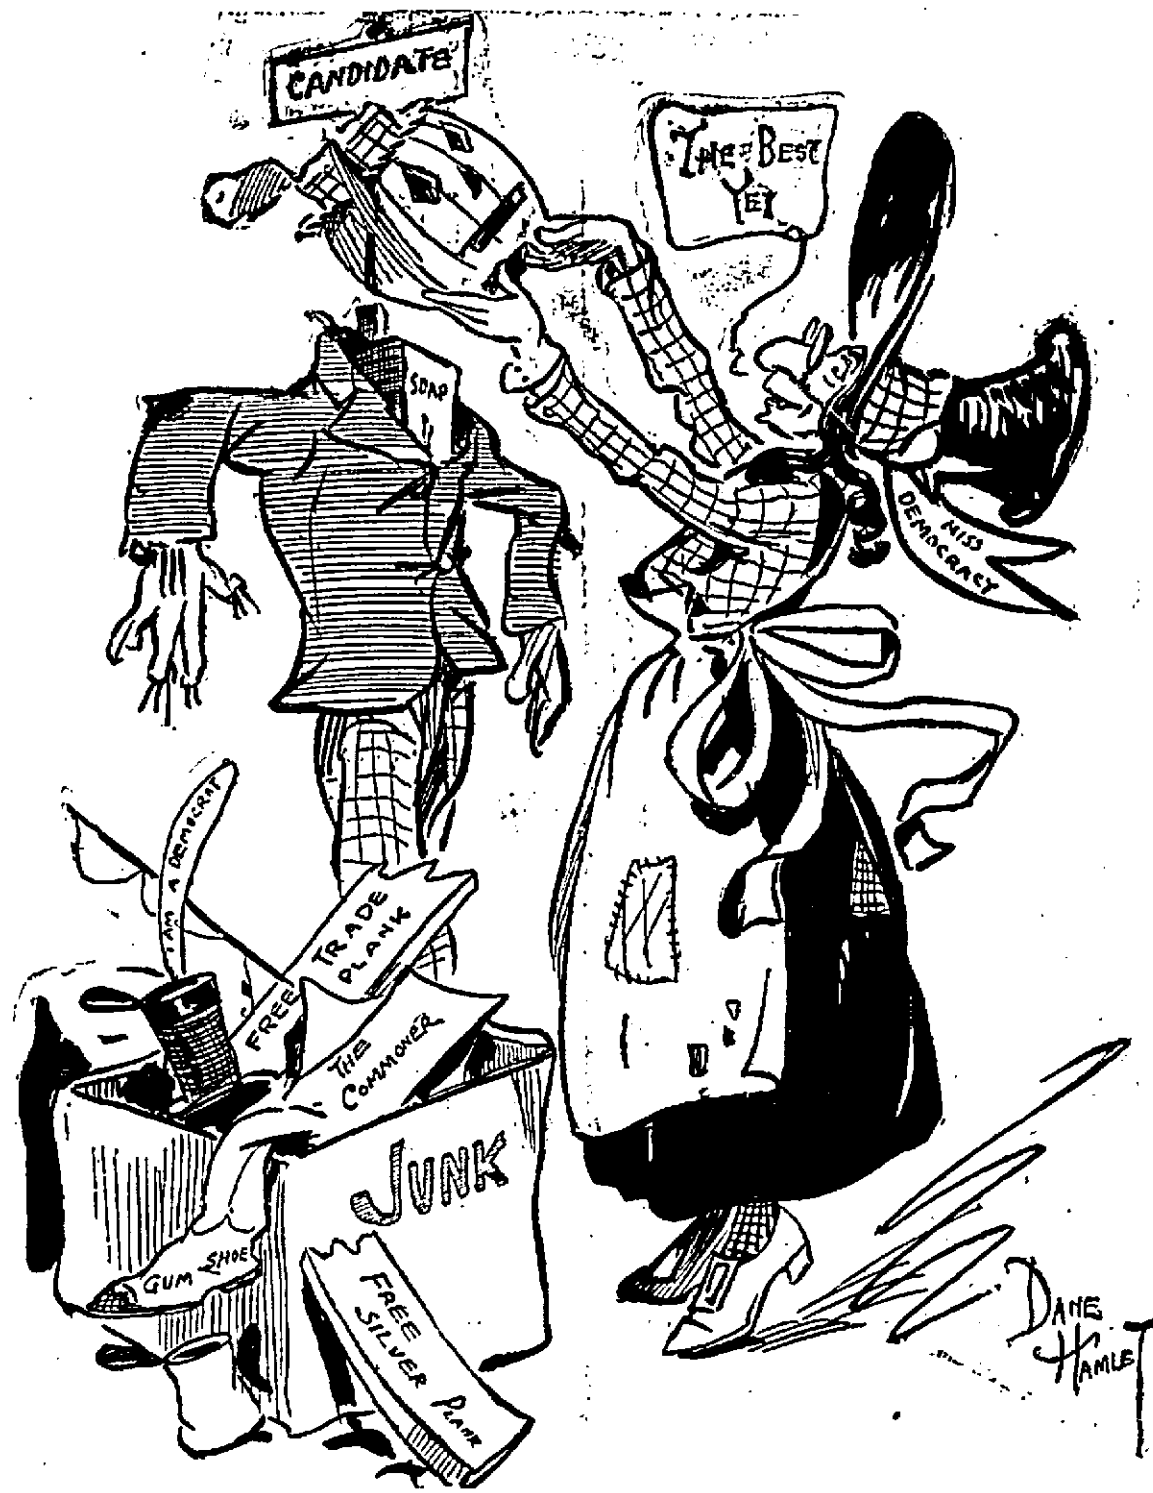

The Japanese advance is not likely to be contested until after the Yalu has been crossed.

The Russians are working night and day to fortify Mukden. Thousands of Chinese coolies have been forced into service. The coolies are not paid and are harshly treated. The entire city is being surrounded with double lines of trenches and heavy field guns being mounted.

The same thing is being done at Hailueng, on the railroad south of Liaoyang.

Force Coolies to Work
At Port Arthur Chinese coolies by thousands are working day and night moving provisions and munitions of war. Soldiers as well as coolies have been hatched to carts for lack of horses. Only a few civilians are left in the place.

The Russian force on the Yalu is believed to be small. The Japanese military intelligence department reports that there are only 2,000 Russian soldiers at Antung. There is a small Russian force in the vicinity of Anju, probably made up of cavalry scouts. These necessarily will fall back as the Japanese army advances. Japanese troops appear to be active in the vicinity of Vladivostok. It is announced officially at Tokio that a mile and a quarter of the Siberian railway between Harbin and Nikolayrole has been to cut the telegraph wires cut.

Port Arthur Has Respite.
Port Arthur seems to be enjoying a brief period of rest from Japanese attack.

Admiral Stark, telegraphing from Port Arthur, March 2, says the enemy did not appear off Port Arthur on either Feb. 28, Feb. 29 or March 1. Reconnoissances made by cruisers and torpedo boats over a radius of sixty miles from Port Arthur also failed to discover the enemy's vessels.

According to a special dispatch from Port Arthur, twenty Chinese have been arrested there for signaling to the Japanese ships from the shore with flashlights and lanterns. A warning has been issued that similar offenders will hereafter be treated as spies and shot.

MORMONISM DISCUSSED BY THE SENATORS TODAY

Many New and Interesting Facts Were Learned From the Revelations of the Head of the Mormon Church.

[Special by Scripps-Mellae.]
Washington, March 3.—Mormonism and its teachings, including polygamy as commanded in a revelation made known to the first president in a vision from "an angel in black," will be given a thorough airing before the senate committee on privileges and elections, which is investigating the protest against Reed Smoot's retaining his seat as a senator from Utah, judging from the trend of the first day's proceedings. President Joseph D. Smith of the Mormon church was on the stand all day and was questioned closely concerning principles of divine revelations. He asserted that he adhered absolutely to all the teachings of the church in that regard and had been visited with divine inspirations from God directing him as to details of church matters. He also affirmed his belief in polygamy.

Fundamental Doctrine.
President Smith asserted that the principle of revelation is the fundamental doctrine of the church, and explained the accepted theory of the revelation of the teaching of polygamy to Joseph Smith, Jr., to whom "an angel in black" appeared. He said that revelations had not come to him in that form, but that he had received direct revelations from God by inspiration. At this point Mr. Bailey declared that he did not believe Congress has anything to do with religious affairs, and wanted to know the purpose of the direction that had been taken in the proceedings. Mr. Taylor replied that the prosecution would attempt to show that the church directed affairs of state politics, and, in fact, all matters, and consequently the method of procedure was necessary.

Wide Latitude Is Given.
No attempt was made by the defense to curtail the testimony until President Smith was questioned in reference to polygamous practices of certain church officials before the manifesto of 1890. After an objection had been made the committee went into executive session and decided that it will hear practically all the prosecution has to offer.

President Smith explained that the first presidency consists of the president of the church and two high priests or counselors, and that the twelve apostles are next in authority. The presidents are elected by the council, and the apostles, he said, but he believed and was taught that the presidents are really chosen by divine revelation, and they are then endowed with the authority of the holy priesthood by authority direct from God. In relation to revelations, the witness said that the church holds that any elder may receive a revelation for his own guidance.

Few Are Polygamists.
Upon a further question by Mr. Hear as to whether any of the revelations of the presidents of the church had been practiced "in a limited way,"

Coming Attractions.

Creator and his Band is the most marvelous musical organization that has yet been heard here. Creator is never at any time the ordinary banjo player, but a genius, highly gifted, sincere, serious and conscientious. Creator is a conductor who feels, not like the ordinary apathetic, lazy mortal, but in eight-fold intensity like the octopus sucking the life's blood of its victims through 400 and odd antennae. While conducting his band he is absolutely burning up with a desire to make the instruments "breathe" music with him. And heavens, what draughts of breath those are. They are such as must have filled the great chest caverns of Siegfried, untamed child of the forest, and of the colossal cyclops, while forging thunderbolts. This word "breathe" is the chief one in Creator's vocabulary. It is with him waking and sleeping, and while lashing himself into fury before his men it is only with the view of making them "breathe" his throbbing life through their instruments. To him at those moments there is no public, and no applause, only musical heights to storm. Is there wonder then that in the whirlwind of such overpowering earnestness and abandonment his listeners are swept completely from their moorings, that they

MAKING FINAL ARRANGEMENTS

FOR REMOVAL OF THE DRESDEN SUGAR FACTORY.

CAPTAIN DAVIDSON TALKS

Says It is a Sure Fact, and That the Foundations Will Be Laid as Soon as Frost Leaves.

"It's a sure fact—We're going to build no matter what protest may be raised by Mr. Wagner," said Capt. James Davidson, the millionaire beet sugar factory owner, to a Gazette representative this morning. "The work of building the foundations will commence just as soon as the frost is out of the ground."

Capt. Davidson arrived in the city late yesterday afternoon and remained in the city today for the purpose of signing all necessary papers and making other preliminary arrangements. The twenty-acre tract on the Paul farm directly east of the old Paul residence and just outside the city limits in the town of La Prairie has been definitely settled on as the site, and the owners were present at a meeting held in Attorney Wheeler's office this afternoon. The factory will face Eastern avenue and will have a frontage of 860 feet on this street.

Many Visit Him
At Walter Helm's store this morning Capt. Davidson was visited by a number of local citizens. In the course of the conversation it was remarked that all of the line for the sugar factory would have to come from Moline, Ill., where it has hitherto been procured both by the Dresden, Canada, and the Menomonee Falls factories. The limestone in this and other localities contains much manganese and silica for the purpose. The power will be furnished by eight 250-horse-power boilers. The exhaust steam is used in the evaporating processes, hence it is never practicable to use electrical power.

Incorporate Tomorrow
The name decided upon at the meeting this morning, by which the Davidson concern will be known hereafter, is "The Rock County Sugar Co." Articles of incorporation will be filed in Madison either this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

MADISON FARMERS TALK OF SUGAR

Interesting Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon, at Which Mr. Wagner Talks.

That the sugar beet craze has struck the southern portion of Wisconsin forcibly was demonstrated yesterday at Madison when eight hundred farmers met at Turner hall and heard Dean Henry of the state university, and R. G. Wagner of the Janesville Sugar company talk of the growth, culture, and benefits of a crop of sugar beets. The meeting was called some time ago with an idea of interesting the farmers of Dane county to become interested in sugar beets and with the hopes that a factory might be established there. A Madison dispatch says that there was serious talk yesterday of having a million-dollar factory established there but who was to promote the plan was not stated. Should the Wisconsin Sugar Beet company decide on Madison in place of Janesville for their proposed factory it would not in any way hurt the prospects of a factory here. Mr. Wagner addressed the Madison meeting as did Prof. Henry. The Wisconsin Sugar company will send men out through Dane county to secure acreage for the coming year and if successful it is said a factory will be built at Madison next year.

HAD 22 CHILDREN; AGED 60 YEARS

APPLICANT FOR AID BY CHARITY TELLS STRANGE STORY.

FOUR SETS OF TWINS BORN

All Dead But Six—Came Here from Rockford—Was Sent to Belleville, to Daughter.

"I have been married forty-three years and am the mother of twenty-two children. I am sixty years old and myself and my husband came here from Rockford looking for work. My husband has gone out into the country to work in the tobacco and I have been turned out of my rooms because I could not pay the rent. This was the strange story told a lady prominent in the work of the associated charities recently.

The Story

The applicant or old stated she was sixty years old; that she was married when she was seventeen years old; that she had been the mother to twenty-two children, four sets of twins included; that she had lost all her babies but six, who were now grown; that she had lived in all parts of the United States, and that she had come to Janesville from Rockford; that her husband was working in the country and would not be paid for two weeks, and she had no place to go and was sick.

Made Inquiry

The lady who heard this tale made inquiry and decided the woman was worthy of help and tried to find a room and a stove so she could be comfortable. Finding in this a help was given her to Belleville where she claimed to have a daughter living. It also developed that the couple had been sent from Rockford here by the Rockford authorities.

Well Preserved

The woman gave her name as Wilkins and said her husband was German. She herself was Scotch-Irish and looked remarkably well preserved or a woman of her age. She stated that she had children living all the way from Montana to Wisconsin and that she had lived for some time years ago at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Sent Here

Beloit had much trouble all winter by poor people who needed aid, being sent across the line from Rockford to that city so that the Beloit authorities might care for them, but this is the first case of the kind reported in Janesville.

HOSTILITIES ON WEST MILWAUKEE

Conductor and a Motorman Do Battle on That Thoroughfare—All Traffic is Suspended.

A fierce challenge to battle pierced the early morning quiet on West Milwaukee street today. The lips leaning out and passed from lip to lip along that thoroughfare brought citizens running to the scene of hostilities. All business in the vicinity of the old postoffice was suspended. Street-car traffic ceased. The conductor told the motorman in a few trite sentences that for running away with the car while he, the conductor, was at the telephone he must pay the penalty, if he was a man. The motorman, hastily classifying himself in that order of bipeds, put down the brake, halted the car, and descended from the platform. The two men grappled and went down together in the muddy street. When they had been separated by onlookers one had a black eye and the other was bleeding freely at the mouth. The war lasted about ten minutes. Both men then climbed back on the car and were soon whizzing towards the eastern horizon.

YOUNG FOLKS WELL ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Crall and Mrs. Carle Entertained Little Ones in Honor of Eugene Crall.

Yesterday afternoon from three to six at the Washington street home of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. F. Carle twelve young people were entertained by Mrs. Christina Crall and Mrs. Crall in honor of Eugene Crall, son of Leroy Crall. The little ones played until five when a three-course supper was served by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Charles Achterberg. Each child was accompanied by an elder member of the family and covers were laid for twenty. The decorations were in green and white. The birthday cake was ornamented with two little candles, Master Eugene having reached his second milestone. The following little folks were present: Misses Mabel Arbuthnot, Floris Blakey, Gladys Crall, Ruth Decker, Miriam Decker and Mary Dell Woodruff; and Masters George Arbuthnot, Willard Brunson, Eugene Crall, George R. Carle, Everett Harper and Willard Kelly.

INSANE PATIENT OF RACINE, DIES

Mrs. Mary Sullivan of Racine County, Dies at the Asylum Here.

Mrs. Margaret Sullivan, aged eighty, died at the county asylum this morning. Mrs. Sullivan was one of the ten patients brought to the Rock county asylum some two weeks ago after the burning of the Racine poorhouse and asylum. It is thought that her health is directly due to the exposure and shock sustained at the time of the burning of that structure. None of the other nine patients who came at the same time are seriously ill, although all suffered from exposure during the night which followed the fire.

MADISON HAS ONE MORE SCANDAL

Former Brakeman Deserts His Wife to Run Away with Another Woman—Warrants issued.

A case of elopement and wife desertion has come to light in Madison by the issuance of warrants for the arrest of Edward Lawler and Alice Pesch, accompanied by a reward for their apprehension. They are supposed to have left the city together February 13. Lawler is 26 years of age, formerly a railroad brakeman, dark complexion, weight 160 pounds, height 5 feet 8 inches, smooth shaven, and having scars on the head and hands. The young woman is of light complexion, weight 130 pounds and but a couple of inches shorter than Lawler. The large number of this class recently has given the Capital city an undesired reputation with the state at large.

A WILD NIGHT FOR OLD ROCK

FIRST BIG THAW FOLLOWED BY HOWLING BLIZZARD.

SIXTEEN SLEEPERS AT JAIL

The Interurban Subway Near Beloit Flooded Early in Evening—Passengers Transferred by Wagon.

Between eleven and twelve o'clock last night cold winds that caused the mercury to sink to the ten below zero mark swept down from the hills and put a sudden check on the streams that were flowing merrily towards the river. About that time the hoppers on the street began to squaw for shelter and in the course of a few minutes the streets were practically deserted.

Crowd at the Jail

Roused from the nooks and hiding places where they had been snugly ensconced for the night, prowlers and hoboes cursed the gods that govern the winds and betook themselves swiftly to the city lock-up. Thirteen clamored for shelter there and admission to pass the balance of the night on the rough board bunks. About the same time three derelicts, steering without a compass with a full cargo of liquor aboard, were towed into port by the watchmen.

Ride by Wagon

Earlier in the evening the interurban train en route at the subway under St. Paul railroad crossing, nine miles from this city, were under eight inches of water and it became impossible to get through. A wagon transfer service was instituted and thereafter the place of cars running north and south. It fortunately happened that a "double-end" was running between the subway and Janesville at the time the blockade occurred. The freeze-up enabled the company to surmount this difficulty and the cars were running in the usual manner again this morning.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—Alfred Hendricks, great detective, just returned from Boston, finds awaiting him an unsigned typewritten letter directing him to apartments in Palace hotel, where he will find remains of Mr. Veldon Caruthers—currently reported for past two weeks to be out of town. Detective seems to connect letter with attempt made on his own life some time previous. Goes with friend, Dr. Lampkin, to investigate.

Chapter II.—Upon search of Caruthers' apartments remains of cremated body and jeweled hand of victim are found in a vase. Hand bears marks of finger nails manacled to sharp points. Lampkin recalls reports of a row between Caruthers and Arthur Glelow, both suitors for hand of Dorothy Huntington, who is heiress to several millions should the marry Caruthers, unconditionally in case of Caruthers' death.

Chapter III.—Late that night Hendricks and Lampkin call at home of Miss Huntington. Chapter IV.—Dorothy shows detective typewritten letter, which was an invitation for herself and aunt to occupy with Count Bantinni, Italian nobleman, his box at horse show, as he was called out of town by pressing business.

Chapter V.—She recalls Glelow had expressed before murder intense hatred for Caruthers and believes him guilty, yet decides to help him, and with her aunt goes to his study.

Chapter VI.—Glelow has fled. His servant, Henri, tells of overhearing confession to Bantinni. Henri thought his master insane. Hendricks, concealed in room, hears all this.

Chapter VII.—Hendricks goes to consult Kola, an East Indian interested in occult researches who had helped him in much previous detective work, and located in an old colonial mansion among the palisades.

Chapter VIII.—Dr. Lampkin is summoned by Hendricks, who has been shot. Bullet is removed and detective warned not to leave his room.

Chapter IX.—Hendricks' unknown enemy had tried to chloroform him in his sleep. Detective had waked just in time, but was wounded by pistol shot before he could prevent his assailant's escape.

Chapter X.—Hendricks calls for a crematory employee, who confirms the supposition that ashes found were those of human body.

Chapter XI.—Miss Huntington receives letter from Glelow in his own handwriting, postmarked at Charleston, S. C., telling of his crime and flight.

Chapter XII.—Noted graphologist examines handwriting of this letter and says it is genuine. During a call on Sgt. Denham, detective of police department, Hendricks comes into possession of cuff with words written in blood over Glelow's name to effect that he was innocent, starving and confined.

Chapter XIII.—Going to Glelow's studio, Henri identifies cuff as his master's. Henri tells of strange influence Bantinni had over Glelow. Hendricks comes to conclusion Bantinni was the murderer, and through hypnotism made Glelow confess both in person to Henri and by letters to others.

Chapter XIV.—Hendricks and Lampkin go to Kola's retreat. Kola tells them Glelow is dead, and to prove his supernatural powers claims to go to detective's home in his astral body and bring back a Bible, which is handed to Hendricks amidst a lot of occult balderdash. Kola warns detective an attempt is to be made on his life.

Chapter XV.—Reaching home, Hendricks learns how nearly Kola deceived him when his mother tells of disappearance of Bible after one of Kola's calls during his absence in Boston.

CHAPTER XVII.

Glelow came back to consciousness through a maze of dreams. He seemed to be in the studio laughing at Henri for draping a curtain awkwardly. Next he was with Dorothy in the conservatory at her home; she never had seemed so beautiful. Then a swift draught of cold air seemed to be striking his feet and ankles. She held some flowers towards him and he tried to take them, but could not lift his hand, or stir a muscle. She glided away, melting into a vast bank of orchids, but when he essayed to follow his feet seemed chained to the floor. He gave a sudden cry of terror as she vanished, and his voice seemed to rebound from the walls and ceiling, which appeared to have contracted. Then he awoke and found himself enveloped in such profound darkness that he wondered if his soul were released from his body and adrift in space.

"Great God!" he exclaimed. "What can this mean? Where am I?"

He tried to recall his latest conscious moments, but his brain seemed benumbed. Everything was chaos. He moved his hand, and felt a clasp of cold steel on his wrist. He heard a chain rattle. Aghast—terrified ineffably—he moved the other hand. It, also, was chained to the stones beneath him. He attempted to draw up his feet. They, too, were manacled.

Then he lay motionless and tried once more to recall past events. Dorothy! Yes, he remembered calling on her and humbly confessing his sorrow for having publicly quarreled with Caruthers. She had readily forgiven him, and shed tears at something she would not explain. He remembered telling her that he was not going to the reception at the Palace hotel the following night. She understood that he shrank from being seen publicly, though she begged him to go and dance once with her. She reminded him that Caruthers was away, but even that did not alter his determination. He left early, for she and her aunt were going to the Horse Show with Count Bantinni, and it was almost time for her to dress.

Then he remembered how hard he worked all the next day, and how he threw himself that night on a lounge and tried to sleep. Finding this impossible, and longing to catch sight of Dorothy as she alighted from her carriage at the reception, he went to the hotel and stood around in the crowd near the ladies' entrance. Here he was met by Count Bantinni. The count had such a strange gleam in his black eyes, and for a wonder was not wearing evening dress.

"I want to have a talk with you," he said in a gentle tone. "You have evaded me for a long time. I am your friend, and will prove it. Come with me to my apartments."

Glelow went with him to his chambers in the next block. It seemed to him, from Bantinni's tone, that he had something important to communicate. Then what had happened? Ah, yes. The count had turned up the gas in his luxurious smoking-room and ordered a bottle of wine. His first words were the very soul of humble candor—and so pathetic.

"My friend," said the count, "we ought to sympathize with each other and bear no ill-will. I am suffering the pangs of hell. I love your sweetheart with all my soul. I have loved her passionately since the moment I first saw her. I, too, am miserable. I walk the streets in agony. I know how you feel, and I sympathize with you."

Tears were in Bantinni's eyes. He took the listless hand of the artist and pressed it. Glelow was too unhappy to repulse him, and by and by it seemed that he really liked the Italian.

"I deepen my pain of heart," said the count. "You know that I understand the use of hypnotism; I apply it to myself when I am most miserable. You need rest; allow me to calm you. It is very simple."

"I'd rather not," said Glelow; but the count had spoken soothingly, and then—why, that was the last thing he could remember excepting—yes, in front of the studio building it seemed that the count had detained him and told him some absurd story about his having killed Caruthers. That must have been a dream, and yet—great God! the chains and the cell! Could he be in a dungeon for the murder of Caruthers?

Glelow managed to rise to his feet and began to grope about him. He touched the wall behind him. It was uneven, like the inside of a cavern. He felt all round the room. In size it was about ten feet long by six in width. One end was of bricks, and that end contained an iron door. Glelow's intelligence told him that he was not in prison, but it furnished no hint of the truth.

The hours passed. Glelow went back to his corner and lay down on the bed of straw. His knees shook and he was very weak. Then the pangs of hunger and thirst awoke in him.

A moment later he knew he was starving. Maddened by this realization, he crawled to the door and bent upon it with his hands. He made a thunderous noise, but when the echoes died out the silence seemed even more profound, more menacing than ever. Again he beat upon the door till the iron cut into his wrists.

Finally he was rewarded by noting a dancing pencil of light pierce the gloom through a crack over the door, and then he heard footsteps outside. A bunch of heavy keys clanked, one was fitted into a rusty lock and the door swung open. In the light of a lantern which he held appeared the crafty features and glistening eyeglasses of Count Bantinni. A sinister smile was on his sallow face.

Glelow shrank backward in bewilderment.

"For God's sake, tell me the meaning of this!" he cried.

"It means that you'll never see the light of day again," said Bantinni, harshly. "You had the cheek to tell me in my rooms that she loves you. Ah! we shall see, my young idiot—she shall love no one but me. Remember I have said it."

"You brought me here, then!" exclaimed Glelow, in wonder.

"Certainly," was the count's reply. He set his lantern down and leaned against the closed door.

"Where am I, in the name of mercy?" gasped Glelow.

"You will never know that," answered the count, with a satisfied smile. "Would you believe that you have been sleeping on that straw for three days and three nights?"

"That may be," slowly replied the artist, "for I am starving."

"Ah, yes, it is time for you to feel that way," replied Bantinni. "It will be hard from now on. I could let you sleep your life away without a moment's pain if I were to hypnotize you again, but I shall not waste the time."

"I was under your influence, then?"

"Completely."

"And for what reason?"

The count laughed. "I don't mind telling you my plan. It will give you something to think about in your solitude. If you will reflect, you will remember that Caruthers was the only barrier to any man's marrying Miss Huntington and getting the benefit of her fortune. Well, Caruthers is non est; he has been murdered. On the night the crime was discovered you confessed to your servant in my presence that you had committed the deed; then you packed your bag and fled."

"Absurd," said Glelow, slowly, his staring eyes fixed in horror on the face of the Italian.

"You remember nothing about it, for you were hypnotized," said the count; but, if you will believe an eye witness, you played the part most naturally. The papers of New York have been full of you for the past three days."

The count paused and festered on Glelow's expression.

"What have you to say to that?" he added, with a fiendish chuckle.

"I simply don't believe it," said the prisoner, slowly. "You have cut me off from information and intend to torture my mind with your Satanic inventions."

"Oh, that's it, eh? Well, how do you like the looks of that?"

Bantinni took from his pocket a folded newspaper, and opening it held the front page where the sullen rays of the lantern fell upon the head lines.

"That's plain enough to be read from where you are," he said. "There's your name at the top."

The big black letters seemed to stamp themselves on the brain of the artist. They drew him, as it were, by force to a sitting posture, then he covered his face with his hands and sank back on his pallet of straw.

Bantinni drew nearer him and swung his lantern over his face. It was as if he feared his victim had succumbed to the ordeal. Seeing his fear ungrounded, he laughed lightly.

"You must not die too quickly," he said; "it would not suit my purpose. Since you have been here you have aided me vastly, and I may need your assistance again."

Glelow made no answer. He had folded his white lips together as if to keep them in subjection.

"You seem to have little curiosity," went on the count. "You have good control over the features, but I can make you writhe. What if I were to tell you that since you have been here you have with your own hand written to your sweetheart confessing your crime and saying that Count Bantinni had followed you for days and nights trying to get you to give up your awful scheme, and that you had finally eluded his vigilance and carried out your plan unknown to him?"

Glelow's very soul seemed to die within him. He closed his eyes to shut out the diabolical visage of his tormentor, but even through his eyelids he saw the red glow of the lantern and felt the presence of the inhuman fiend.

"And more than that," continued the voice of the Italian. "You have written a letter to the police acknowledging the crime and expressing your intention of leaving America for good. They are trying to catch you, but when they fail and have forced me to testify against you—I say forced, for it would be unseemly in a friend to volunteer such information—and after my statement has compelled Henri to open his lips, well, you can see that with you buried here I shall be safe to marry the girl. You don't think so?" (Glelow had writhed visibly.) "Well, remember my power. She would have been my wife long ago but for the clause in the will pertaining to Caruthers. I have always believed that a great murder could be committed without the perpetrators ever being detected, and I have carefully worked out the details of this plan."

The strain was too much for the depleted physical condition of the ill-starred prisoner. Bantinni seemed to be talking to him from a great distance. Then came the sound of the iron doors closing, the turning of a key in a rusty lock, darkness, silence, soothing unconsciousness.

First for the Year—Storm Came From Denver—Zero Weather and Snow Followed.

The first thunderstorm and the first hail storm of the season visited Janesville last night at 5 o'clock. For seven minutes hailstones pelted the city, some of them three-quarters of an inch in diameter. The thunder and lightning lasted for twenty minutes and the temperature rose to fifty degrees.

The Cause of Many ## Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney trouble. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and sealding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EMPHATIC TALK

The Kind That Carries Conviction to Every Janesville Reader.

Conviction must follow such emphatic proof as is given here. The testimony of Janesville residents should satisfy the most skeptical. Here is a Janesville case. Read it and see if doubt can exist in the face of this evidence.

Mr. E. T. Fish, of 355 Ravine street, proprietor of the Fish Dray Line says: "When I was twenty years of age I fell injuring my back, and ever since that I was troubled more or less with a dull aching pain across the loins. It never laid me up but it was often painful and annoying. Of late years I have gone to a physician every six months and had myself thoroughly examined under the impression that there might be something wrong with my kidneys. The diagnosis always resulting in the physician claiming these organs were sound, but as the pains existed when I happened to notice in our Janesville papers that Doan's Kidney Pills were guaranteed to cure just such troubles I procured a box at the People's Drug store and took them. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good preparation. My back has not ached since I used them. I have heard others speak very complimentary of them and if I did not know their merit and required such a medicine I would consider it a favor if some one suggested their use to me. For this reason I endorse them."

A Solemn Duty.

A solemn duty which we owe society, our children and ourselves is that nothing which can be done to assist nature at that time when our wives are to become mothers should be left undone. Of all the countless details to be observed at such a time, no single one is of more importance than the bodily welfare of the expectant mother; she must not experience undue suffering through any lack of effort on our part.

should be the recourse of all real men and women at such times; it is easily obtainable, and it is a positive crime not to procure it. Its offices are to relax the muscles and tissues intimately associated in this greatest of the Creator's phenomena, and by simple external applications a result is obtained which at the appointed time permits the mother to undergo her greatest joy with fortitude, and bring into the world a child worthy of its parents. $1.00, all druggists. ### EMPLOYERS DENY ANY MERGER

Only Secretaries of Gotham Association in New Body.

New York, March 3.—Preliminary steps have been taken for the formation of a central body to be composed of the secretaries of all the employers' associations in New York. The purpose is to bring them into closer association in dealing with the labor unions, so that the handling of all transactions between the employers and the wage-earners may be greatly simplified. It was rumored among union men that the meeting was the first step in the direction of the amalgamation of all the employers' associations in New York, but this was emphatically denied by leading employers. The secretaries in the new organization will represent invested capital of $500,000,000.

SMALLPOX AMONG THE INDIANS

Many Deaths in Canadian Northwest Cause Natives to Flee in Terror.

Winnipeg, Man., March 3.—Trappers and traders coming from the north report terrible suffering among the Indians from lack of food and a scourge of smallpox. At Isle de Croix sixty deaths are reported. Commissioner Laird of the Indian department sent a relief expedition, accompanied by mounted police, under the medical direction of Dr. McCullough of Battleford. He has sent back word that the epidemic is of greater proportions than at first reported and requests a larger supply of vaccine. The natives are fleeing from the infected district and are spreading the disease.
